Representatives of the unions meet the incoming trains and urge the cutters, who are arriving in large numbers, to join the unions. It is reliably reported that $2 a day for nine hours, and board and lodging, will be demanded. The farmers state that they cannot afford to pay more than $1.59 a day, and if the cutters try to enforce their demand the growers will organize, and the farmers and their sons will help each other to cut their crops.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of some of the most valuable timber in Wyoming has been destroyed, and unless the flames are checked by rain, the loss will run into the millions.

On the west fork of the Encampent River one of the most beautiful forests in the State is being ravaged by fires that started in three different places, but which have now spread lite one rigantic blaze. The amount of timber that will be destroyed there alone is estimated at at least $1,000,000. Concern is being manifested for the safety of the towns of Battle Lake and Rambler, which he a mile and a half apart. The origin of the fire is attributed to sheep herders and camp movers.

Her neighbors complained of the nuisance. Mrs. Heinkel, who is old, states that she keeps the dogs for protection.

COMBINE DEFEATS RAILWAY BILL AGAIN

Measure Cannot Be Resurrected Before January, 1903, When Next Session Begins.

COMMISSION MAY BE CHOSEN.

Probable That the House Will Ask Council to Arrange for Drafting of New

The street railway regulation bill cannot be resurrected again before 1903. By a solid vote the combine defeated the measure a second tive last evening in the House of Delegates, after voting down a resolution offered by Mr. Kelly for a public hearing next Friday afternoon

Not content with killing the bill, Mr. Denny had it buried by moving that it be laid over indefinitely. Eighteen Delegates supported Mr. Denny and only eight voted against his motion.

Probably the House will ask the Council to appoint a conference committee, or to concur in the appointment of a commission for the purpose of framing a new bill. But no measure providing for a general law to govern the operation of street cars can be introduced in either branch of the Municipal Assembly before January, 1903, when the legislature will begin its next session.

The following men voted to kill the bill

The following men voted to kill the bill:
Speaker Fontana and Messrs. Buckley,
Cronin, Denay, Gazzolo, Geraghty, Hannigan, Howard, Kinney, Koein, Murrell, Pfeffle, Stannard, Stanze, Sweeney, Troll, Williams and Zachritz-18. Against killing the bill: Messrs. Burke, Fauikner, Funsch, Karbe, Kelly, Klute, Oberbeck and Windmuller-8. Absent: Mr. Brennan-1.
The meeting did not last long, but what it lacked in length it made up in excitement, Were it not for the serious effect of the combine's action, the sesson might have been looked upon as a farce-comedy, for the combine members passed the evening with their feet on the desks, occasionally arisling from their seats to exchange personal remarks with the minority Delegates, and indulge in bolsterous laughter.

SWEENEY LOLLS LAZILY

SWEENEY LOLLS LAZILY WITH FEET ON DESK TOP.

The excitement began as soon as Mr. Kelly submitted a resolution for a public hearing on the bill next Friday afternoon. Mr Sweeney, who had one foot on his own desk and the other on Buckley's desk, leaned back in his chair and laughed loudly while Clerk Judge read the resolution. Mr. Kelly was recognized, and began to explain necessity for a public hearing.

"What's the use of letting Kelly rehash all this old trash?" said Sweeney. "It's crazy to come in at the last minute with a resolution like this. All Cholly wants is to get his name in the papers and pose before the people in a grand-stand play. V Cholly's a four-flusher; that's all he is Kelly: "Everybody knows your dialogue Sweeney, so there's no use making an exdibition of yourself.'

"You bet they know my dialogue. It's the Ashley building dialogue, and it's all right."

Kelly: "Sweeney objects to the resolu tion because one like it was introduced at the last meeting. I believe this course is entirely proper; it's certainly parliamenry. Sometimes even members of the mbine change their minds. Who knowsthey may now be in favor of a public hearing. Sweeney himself changed his vote on a switch bill," Sweeney: "I did not. Don't get per-sonal. I object to personalities." Kelly: "It hurts me to mention your deflance at the public.

Sweeney frequently interrupted Mr. Kelly, and verbal tilts, lurid in nature were not uncommon between different members. Sweeney closed one debate by telling Kelly to "Go to h-." The meeting was unusually spirited. The resolution for a public hearing was laid on the table by a vote of 15 to 11. When the bill was reported unfavorably by Howard and Kinney of the Committee on Railroads, Oberbeck submitted a minority report recommending its passage. Ob ity report recommending its passage. Obserbeck said he was not invited to the committee meeting and implied that the other committeemen had desired to report the bill unfavorably without allowing him, as a member of the committee, to have anything to say.

He asked that the bill be recommitted and considered thoroughly and said he was in favor of a public hearing. Now and then he was interrupted by members of the combine who sought to illuminate his brief address with fiery remarks. The minority report was rejected by a vote of 18 to 8.

CONSIDERATION OF BILL. CONSIDERATION OF BILL INDEFINITELY DEFERRED.

INDEFINITELY DEFERRED.

Mr. Denny did not allow Speaker Fontana to call the roll on the majority report. He moved that "further consideration of the bill be deferred indeflitely" and his motion prevailed by a vote of 18 to 8.

"I want to ask a question," said Burke, "If this bill is introduced in the next session will you let it have its first reading?" Speaker Fontana said he could not tell until the time would come.

Mr. Kinney suggested at the committee meeting last evening that the Council be requested to concur in a resolution for appointment of a commission, to consist of Councilmen and Delegates, whose duty it would be to formulate another bill. In all probability something like this will be done. The House passed the Gibson bill prohibiting the discharge of dense smoke by locomotives and steamboats. Speaker Fontana and Messrs. Kinney and Troll voted against it. Mr. Burke expressed gratification that at least one committee had been dutiful enough to report a Council bill favorably, and he said he was surprised that the combine had voted for the measure.

CLOTHING INDUSTRY MIGRATING SOUTH

Statistics Show Remarkable Increase in Manufactories and Capital Invested in Dixie.

RAPID DECLINE IN THE NORTH.

England Establishments Shrink From 335 to 266 and Capital From $13,329,441 to $5,092,941.

The Republic Bureau, Washington, Aug. 8.-The Census Bureau to-day issued a bulletin giving statistics of the manufacture of clothing in the United States. It shows a marked growth of this industry in the Southern States.

The bulletin says: "The New England States will rank third, by a small margin, in the value of products, but during the decade the Southern States passed them in respect to number of establishments and capital invested. "The total number of establishments in the New England States decreased from 255 to 226; in 1890 they constituted 6.9 per cent, of the aggregate, and in 1900, 4.6 per cent. The capital decreased 61.8 per cent, from $13,329,441 to $5,092,941, constituting only 4.2 per cent of the aggregate in 1900 as against 10.4 per cent in 1890. The value of products decreased 51.9 per cent from $26,224,537 to $12,626,756. In 1900 it constituted 4.6 per cent of the aggregate, as against 10.5 per cen in 1890.

"While the number of establishments in the Southern States showed a decrease during the decade from 316 to 310, the capital increased 89.7 per cent from $3,017,421 to $5,-725,477, or from 2.4 per cent of the aggregate to 4.8 per cent. The value of products increased 82.1 per cent, from $6,388,705 to $11, 634,945, and was 4.2 per cent of the aggre gate in 1900, as against 2.5 per cent in 1890. "Among the Central States, Illinois showed the largest increase in number of establishments and in value of products, but only a slight increase in capital invested. The relative position of Illinois remained the same; in 1900 the capital invested constituted 11.3 per cent of the aggregate, as against 10.3 per cent in 1890, and creased from $13,106,296 to $10,732,010, or 18.2 per cent and the value of products from $20,604,134 to $16,593,824, or 19.5 per cent. "In 1900 the capital invested in the industry in Ohio constituted 8.9 per cent of the aggregate, as against 10.2 per cent in 1890, and the value of the products 6 and 8.2, respectively. All the other States in this group showed increases in the value of products, but their proportion of the aggregate the value of products 13.5 per cent, as against 13.4 per cent in 1890. The only State among the Central States showing a decrease was Ohio. The capital invested de-remained practically the same. "The greatest changes took place in the New England group. With the exception of Connecticut and Vermont, in which States the industry hardly existed in 1890, every State showed a considerable decrease in number of establishments as well as in capital and product. The largest decrease appeared in Massachusetts, where the capital decreased $7,461,452, from $11,252,626 to $3,793,175, or 68.3 per cent, and the value of products $11,411,683, from $21,242,647 to $9,830,-964, or 53.7 per cent. In 1900 the percentage of the aggregate capital was 3.1 and of the aggregate product 3.5, as against 8.8 and 8.5, respectively, in 1890. The reason for this decrease has already been shown. "The most noteworthy changes in the Southern group appear in the States of North Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia, In 1890 he capital in North Carolina was $13 .-150, and the value of products $72,000; in 1900 the capital has increased to $495,616 and the value of products to $1,037,286. In Tennessee the value of products increased from $488,712 in 1890 to $1,631,075 in 1900, and in Georgia. from $352,461 to $1,120,607. In Kentucky the value of products increased from $2,518,540 to $3,420,365. The only State in this group showing a decrease was Louisiana, where the value of products decreased from $2,174,-747 in 1890 to $2,047,069 in 1900."

PLAN TO SELECT WASHINGTON.

G. A. R. May Establish Permanent Headquarters.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Washington, Aug. 8.-Washington will be the permanent headquarters of the Grand Army of the Republic if the present plans of some of the most prominent members of that organization do not miscarry. Further, it is said that spectacular features that have heretofore marked the gatherings will be abandoned, and that from now on Wash-ington will be the regular encampment

For some years there has been a growing feeling among the veterans that, owing to their advancing years, it would not be prac-tical to continue the great annual gatherings that have marked the organization's history, and that the G. A. R. should be placed on a business rather than a social basis.

While the social features are desirable the prime object, as the leaders believe, should be to look after the material welfare of the members of the organization. All aid must come from Congress, and with the headquarters of the organization located. the headquarters of the organization located in some distant city, it is with difficulty that the framers of legislation are informed of the needs of the veterans.

The interests of the order are all declared to be centered at the national capital, and to maintain the national headquarters at any other place is to seriously handicap those who are looking after the interests of the veterans.

those who are looking after the interests of the veterans.

This phase of the subject has been quietly discussed among the members of the G. A. R. for the last two years, but only now the movement has taken on considerable importance. But little doubt is entertained that the plan will be adouted when presented to the delegates to the coming encampment.

Mr. West was summoned on the special

Mr. West was summoned on the special venire for jurors in the Faulkner perjury case. Two days before the case went to trial he notified Circuit Attorney Folk and Judge Douglas by letter that he would be unable to serve as a juror, having to leave the City on business. He was not present in court when his name was called and Judge Douglas ordered attachment issued for him. Mr. West returned to the city a few days ago and was ordered to appear before Judge Douglas yesterday.

Asked by the Judge why he had not answered the summons for jury service, West replied that his only reason had been given in his letter written before his departure from the city.

in his letter written before his departure from the city.

Judge Douglas then declared that a summons for jury service on a citizen was as important in time of peace as a call to arms in time of war, and that it was a duty all good men owed their country. He assessed the fine, which Mr. West paid.

Faulkner with one of his attorneys, Judge Harvey, was in court to hear Judge Douglas's ruling on the motion in arrest of judgment. As Charles P. Johnson, the defendants chief counsel was not present. Judge Douglas laid the matter over till next Monday.

In case it is overruled, the sentence of two years imprisonment in accordance with the jury's verdict will be pronounced.

Faulkner's recourse then will be an appeal to the Supreme Court.
